April 2021

Fund Commentary

Global equity markets delivered broad-based gains in April. Continued optimism about a reignited global economy, vaccine progress in the U.S. and Europe, and hopes for a recovery in corporate earnings seemed to bolster markets. At the same time, some regions around the world continued to grapple with a surge in coronavirus cases. The Polen Capital Global Growth Fund (the Fund) increased by 4.86 per cent versus the MSCI ACWI in AUD which returned 2.91 per cent.

The top two absolute contributors to performance were Alphabet and Microsoft. Information technology contributed the most to relative performance, primarily due to stock selection. Shares of SAP and Visa rose during the month as both companies also reported quarterly earnings that exceeded expectations. Stock selection within consumer staples, specifically Nestle and Estee Lauder, contributed to returns.

An underweight to the financials, materials, and real estate sector detracted from relative performance, respectively. As a by-product of the Fund's bottom-up investment process, the Fund is typically underweight in these areas as these types of companies often do not meet Polen Capital's investment criteria.

We believe the Fund is well-positioned for long-term growth. The secular tailwinds that many of our portfolio businesses enjoy have accelerated during the global pandemic, and we think they will persist. We view the value propositions of the companies we own as superior. We are pleased with the stable competitive advantages that we believe support our businesses and factor into the intended earnings growth of the Fund.
